Mike Dejanov Mike Dejanov (born July 31, 1968) is an American jazz pianist, a native of Yugoslavia who emigrated to the U.S. at a young age. Early life Dejanov was born and raised in Ljubljana, Slovenia. His father, Blagoje Dejanov, was a jazz musician with the Slovenian State Opera. When he was 14, Mike moved to Italy with his family, and stayed there until he was 16, learning the piano, violin, clarinet, and singing. When he was 16, he went to study music at New York's High School of Performing Arts, where he became part of the faculty. By his mid-teens, he had gained experience playing classical and new-age music, but was inspired by the late classical pianists Keith Jarrett and Joel Rosenblatt and their jazz style. Later life and career After graduating, Dejanov moved to New York City, where he played jazz, blues, rock, and experimental music, including the works of avant-garde musicians Keith Jarrett and Frank Zappa. He held his first music gig at The Great American Music Hall in 1992. He was a regular performer at the Chez Jay Lounge and the Jazz Gallery in New York from 1992 to 1994. His first trio album, Spontaneous (1994),

What's new:

PuppetShow is a unique, award-winning and perfectly designed app to help children ages 3 to 8 practice their lettering skills. It features a variety of interactive, colourful and easy to read cartoon characters, each with a unique personality. Your child will learn to first use a brush to colour any of the characters into their portrait, then later on paint their own picture in a game of doodle! The app is also packed with a playground of puzzles, matching games, word or number matching and shape matching tasks. This comes together to help young children learn how letters and numbers represent one another whilst having fun at the same time!  This application is free, but does contain advertising.
