Abstract The purpose of this research project was to identify the factors that influence parent/guardian and student use of a non-physical education course for after-school sports. The study used an applied research design, a quantitative, correlational approach. The sample consisted of 65 parents and students who completed measures regarding student use of the course, parent and student gender, family income, and parent education. The data were analyzed using multiple regression and descriptive statistics. The results indicated that parent and student perceptions that the course met academic goals of the school were significant factors in student participation in the after-school sports course. The finding also indicated that the greater the student's and parent's perception that the course met academic goals, the more likely they were to participate in the course. A better understanding of factors influencing the students and parents' use of the after-school sports course can be helpful in the development of a successful program. Breadcrumb
Glutathione in Nutrition Have you ever wondered why some people, like athletes, and others, like the elderly, seem to be able to eat plenty and still lose weight? It is important to look at the thiols (especially glutathione) in nutrition to understand why people get fat. Nutritional Athletes Will Lose Fat There is a class of athletes that enjoy a good challenge and are always looking to do better and be

To explore whether a functional single nucleotide polymorphism (SNP) rs6182 in the androgen receptor (AR) gene is associated with prostate cancer risk in Chinese men. The CGG repeats in exon 2 of the AR gene were analyzed in a pilot study of 707 patients and 1328 controls. The patients were subjected to a case-control study to examine the association between rs6182 and prostate cancer risk. In the pilot study, the allele frequencies of the CGG repeats in patients were significantly lower than those in controls [11.1 vs 13.1%; OR = 0.67; 95% confidence interval (CI) = 0.53-0.87]. However, a significant association was not found between rs6182 and prostate cancer risk (OR = 0.89; 95% CI = 0.63-1.23). However, the haplotype analysis showed a significant association of the CGG/CCG haplotype with a lower prostate cancer risk than that of the CGG/CGG haplotype (OR = 0.70; 95% CI = 0.53-0.94). In a case-control study, we also found a significant association between rs6182 and prostate cancer risk (OR = 0.73; 95% CI = 0.56-0.96). The stratified analysis indicated that the carriers of the CCG/CCG haplotype had a lower risk of prostate cancer than those carrying the CGG/CCG haplotype (OR = 0.67; 95% CI 0.53-0.94).
